

Great health and safety myths

The myth Safety experts' New Year resolution is to make the life of business people as miserable as possible

The reality Not according to businesses. Those who have had contact with us were asked about HSE's helpfulness:

90% of employers and chief executives/senior directors rate us as helpful.

90% of chief executives/senior directors consider that health and safety requirements benefit their company as a whole.